CCC public protection department officers have been out and investigated concerns about rats in Maes Afallen. They also visited Rhoslan and were satisfied that there was no evidence of rodent activity as originally suggested by the member of Maes Afallen. They were happy that the garden at Rhoslan is well-maintained, with no traces of any rodent droppings in the outbuildings either. While they were visiting Rhoslan, they discovered other premises had chickens, which they sent a letter to, and also to the rest of the residents in Maes Afallen. They contacted the individual with concerns to explain their findings and that also they were satisfied with the rest of the properties in Maes Afallen and that they were all maintained well. In the letter, it states the pest baiting service that CCC can provide.

A request from Rhydpennau Show has been received and a cheque of £200 will be issued to L. Evans.
